About the Short Story: A Real Durwan

Summary of the Plot

A Real Durwan is set in a bustling Kolkata apartment complex and revolves around a woman named Boori Ma, who claims to have been a durwan (a gatekeeper or security guard) in her past. She is responsible for maintaining security and cleanliness of the building, but her status is based on her storytelling rather than her actual role.

The story explores how Boori Ma's perceived authenticity and her role in the community are challenged when the residents' circumstances change. Her narrative of being a "real durwan" is gradually questioned, revealing themes of identity, respectability, and societal perception.

Themes and Literary Significance

- Identity and Self-Perception: The story examines how individuals construct their identities and the importance of community perception.
- Social Class and Respectability: Lahiri explores the social hierarchies within the community and how these influence personal dignity.
- Cultural Displacement: Boori Ma's background reflects the immigrant experience, emphasizing themes of displacement and adaptation.
