The Genesis of the Cookbook

The idea for the Dinah Bucholz Harry Potter cookbook reportedly originated from her fascination with the culinary traditions depicted across the series. Inspired by the detailed descriptions of food at Hogwarts and in the wizarding world at large, Bucholz aimed to recreate and reimagine these dishes for a contemporary audience. Her goal was to produce a cookbook that not only offers recipes but also immerses fans in the cultural and historical context of the magical universe.

The project was officially announced in 2017, with Bucholz promising a collection that would blend authentic historical recipes with inventive interpretations of Harry Potter-themed dishes. Drawing upon her expertise, she researched medieval and early modern European cuisines, which informed many of her recipes' foundations.

Between the Global and Individual is an edited volume consisting of 14 chapters by scholars interested in contemporary medievalisms across the world. It is a timely contribution to the growing scholarship on medievalisms offering chapters that consider both the individual experiences of medievalisms, as well as those of societies and cultures at large. The chapters of the book are grouped into three parts, the first explores stereotypes and myths in medievalisms; the second examines medievalisms that speak to particular communities and audiences; and the third studies how medievalisms are impacted by or stimulate conversations of politics and gender. These chapters all reflect a growing interest in medievalisms, and the appreciation of how they are present, materialise and evolve in different contexts and offers insights into medievalisms in politics, popular culture, social activism and more. Throughout the book, examples and case studies demonstrate how medievalisms in the modern age are at times individual experiences, at other times global phenomena and sometimes are in between.
