Thackeray's Literary Roots

William Makepeace Thackeray's The Luck of Barry Lyndon is a semi-autobiographical novel that narrates the rise and fall of an Irish adventurer, Redmond Barry, who reinvented himself as Barry Lyndon. Thackeray's sharp wit and keen social critique underpin the narrative, which is presented as Barry's own memoirs. The work satirizes the romantic notions of chivalry and aristocratic superiority, exposing the pretenses of a class-conscious society.

Stanley Kubrick's Adaptation

Decades later, Stanley Kubrick adapted Thackeray's novel into a film that is often regarded as one of the greatest visual achievements in cinema. Kubrick's Barry Lyndon is renowned for its meticulous period detail, innovative cinematography, and subtle storytelling. - The unpredictability of life's outcomes.
- The illusion of control over one's destiny.
- The acceptance or denial of fate's influence.

Literary Devices and Narrative Style

Thackeray's choice of a first-person narrative immerses the reader in Barry Lyndon's subjective view, often blending fact with fiction and self-aggrandizement.

The memoirs are rich in satire, exposing the follies of the protagonist and society. Irony pervades the text—what Barry perceives as noble or heroic often appears trivial or petty in retrospect.

Use of Picaresque Structure

The episodic, adventure-like structure mirrors the picaresque tradition, emphasizing the rogue's journey through various social strata.

Visual and Narrative Techniques in the Film

While the original memoirs are literary, Kubrick's adaptation employs distinctive cinematic techniques to realize their themes:

- Cinematography: The use of natural light, candlelit scenes, and wide-angle lenses creates an authentic period feel.
- Costume and Production Design: Meticulous accuracy underscores the social ambitions of Barry Lyndon.
- Music and Sound: Classical compositions enhance the mood and reflect the internal states of characters.
- Narration: The voice-over narration, delivered with a dry wit, echoes Thackeray's tone and emphasizes irony.

Lyndon was written in 1843 and 1844, and first appeared in Fraser's Magazine in the latter year. As was the case with nearly all of Thackeray's serially published novels, the end was not written until almost the time when the serial publication required it. Thackeray's diary recording on November 4, 1844, finished Barry after great throes late at night. He had written it all through the year in Paris and in London, and apparently with unusual difficulty in the midst of other undertakings; Mrs. Ritchie quotes several passages from the diary and from letters, ranging from October, 1843, to August, 1844, showing work for Punch and many things in hand besides, and nearly all expressing anxiety at the slow and laborious progress of the novel. Finally he carried it with him on his journey from Cornhill to Cairo, and wrote the last lines, and the diary entry just cited, in quarantine at Malta on his way home.
