At its core, Snow on Cedars revolves around the murder of Carl Heine, a local fisherman found dead under suspicious circumstances. The story is narrated through the courtroom proceedings of a trial that seeks to determine the truth behind the murder. The primary suspect is Kabuo Miyamoto, a Japanese-American fisherman and veteran, whose trial sparks intense debate on racial bias and justice.

Guterson employs a dual narrative structure, intertwining the courtroom drama with reflective chapters narrated by Ishmael Chambers, a local journalist and war veteran.
