A close study of the archives made between the years 1897 and 1901, during which period, at the request of the Hall, I drew up a Calendar of the transactions of the Society extending over three large volumes, had made me familiar with the subject. But the preparation from the voluminous documents of a formal history of a Corporation forming a connecting link between the Middle Ages and modern times was a formidable task; and I should not have ventured to undertake it but for the assistance promised (and cordially rendered) by the late and present Treasurers and other members of the Society, and but for the large measure of approval that has been bestowed upon my previous efforts to elucidate local history.
