Frequently Asked Questions

What are the primary steps to take when providing first aid in a CHP practice scenario?

The primary steps include ensuring scene safety, assessing the victim's responsiveness, calling for emergency assistance, providing appropriate first aid (such as CPR or wound care), and monitoring the victim until professional help arrives.

How can I identify signs of a stroke during the CHP first aid practice test?

Signs of a stroke include sudden weakness or numbness, facial drooping, difficulty speaking or understanding speech, sudden vision changes, dizziness, or severe headache. Prompt recognition is critical for effective response.

What is the correct way to perform CPR on an adult according to CHP guidelines?

To perform CPR, call 911, then place hands on the center of the chest, compress hard and fast at a rate of about 100-120 compressions per minute, allowing the chest to fully recoil between compressions, and provide rescue breaths if trained to do so.

When should you use an Automated External Defibrillator (AED) during first aid?

Use an AED as soon as it is available if the person is unresponsive and not breathing normally, as early defibrillation can significantly increase the chances of survival in cases of cardiac arrest.

What are common first aid treatments for bleeding during CHP practice scenarios?

Common treatments include applying direct pressure to the wound with a clean cloth, elevating the injured area if possible, and applying a bandage to control bleeding. Seek professional medical help if bleeding is severe or doesn't stop.

How do you handle a choking victim during a CHP first aid test?

If the victim is coughing and able to breathe, encourage them to continue coughing. If they cannot breathe or cough effectively, perform abdominal thrusts (Heimlich maneuver) to dislodge the object, and call emergency services immediately.
