Freight Agreement International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 2015-09-28 January 15, 1964 became a monumental day in Teamsters history when the first National Master Freight Agreement was signed in Chicago. This contract would provide solid, standardized protection and benefits to more than 450,000 over-the-road and local cartage drivers across the country. The contract, which was described as an impossible task by critics and friends of labor alike, was a milestone for labor unions everywhere. James R. Hoffa, architect, chief negotiator, and overall firestorm of energy behind the agreement, considered this the crowning achievement of his tenure with the Teamsters.

www accessfreightliner com: Freight Classification John Frederick Strombeck, 2017-10-16
Excerpt from Freight Classification: A Study of Underlying Principles Freight classification has had a gradual development. It has been recognized from the earliest days of turnpikes, different vehicles having been placed in different categories.¹ The early canal companies carried this idea still farther by basing their rates somewhat upon the value of the service and assessing the heaviest tolls upon the most valuable goods.² In some parts of this country freight was carried in the early days by wagon along turnpikes, at a toll, for each 100 miles carried, of 20 cents per cubic foot for light articles and $1 per 100 pounds for heavy articles. When the state legislatures granted charters to the early rail roads, they sometimes fixed maximum charges on this basis. The charter granted by South Carolina, in 1827, to the South Carolina Railroad provided that freight charges, per 100 miles, should not exceed 10 cents per cubic foot for light articles and 50 cents per 100 pounds for heavy articles. www accessfreightliner com: The Freight Classification and Traffic Territories of the United States (Classic Reprint) Elvin S. Ketchum, 2017-12-14 Excerpt from The Freight Classification and Traffic Territories of the United States Every dollar of wasted freight money either by railroads or by shippers, is a dollar of wasted profit. There are two factors which control freight charges: (1) The legal published rate in the tariff, in effect at the time the shipment moves; (2) The reasonableness of the rate, when all transportation, traffic, industrial, commercial and physical conditions are taken into consideration. In order to know the application, reasonableness, and legality of any rate between two points on any given shipment, you must know what tariff has jurisdiction. A knowledge of the use of tariffs presupposes an understanding of traffic territories, basing points, common points, rate zones, how the rates are based within, to, between, and from the various rate points or territories, which are instrumental in rate construction. The aim of this monograph is not to produce a large mass of printer's ink and paper, but to give an intelligent understanding of the traffic territories and points used in the construction of rates, enabling the practical traffic man to more fully understand the jurisdiction of tariffs. The information, therefore, has been presented in the smallest possible space, realizing that the busy man has no time to wade through hundreds of pages of discussion, which could be summarized in a few paragraphs. You can get very little out of this monograph by casually reading it. You must make a careful study of the technical points presented in connection with the Freight Classification & Traffic Territory Map and be able to answer all of the study questions which you will find in the back of the monograph. If you will do this conscientiously, the information presented here should help you to easily understand and interpret the tariffs. The wrong tariff is often used in connection with a shipment. The following incident shows how a large amount of money was lost for want of a practical knowledge of the jurisdiction and application of tariffs. The president of the Brown Manufacturing Company was seated behind his mahogany roll-top desk. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
