Overview of the Global Regents Exam

The Global Regents Examination evaluates students' knowledge and understanding of world history from ancient times to the present. The exam typically consists of multiple-choice questions, constructed-response questions, and essay prompts, all designed to assess different levels of cognitive skills.

Scoring Components of the Global Regents

Understanding the components of the scoring system is crucial for students aiming to achieve specific score goals. The exam generally comprises:

1. Multiple-Choice Section

- Usually includes 50-55 questions.
- Each question is worth one point.
- Total points: approximately 50-55 points.

2. Short-Answer/Constructed-Response Questions

- Usually 4-6 questions.
- Each question is scored based on accuracy, depth of understanding, and completeness.
- Total points vary but generally total around 20-25 points.

3. The Essay (Global History and Geography Essay)

- One essay prompt.
- Scored on a scale of 1 to 5.
- Assesses analytical skills, historical understanding, and writing ability.

Understanding the Scoring Scale

The overall score on the Global Regents is reported as a scaled score, which ranges typically from 0 to 100. Here's how the scoring works:

1. Raw Scores to Scale Scores

- Raw scores are the sum of points earned across all sections.
- These raw scores are converted to scaled scores via a conversion chart provided by the New York State Education Department (NYSED).
- Conversion ensures fairness across different test versions and difficulty levels.

2. Passing Scores and Grade Levels

- The passing score for the Global Regents typically is 65.
- Scores below 65 are considered failing, but students can still receive a certificate of participation.
- Achieving a score of 85 or higher is considered excellent and may qualify students for honors recognition.

Interpreting Your Global Regents Score

Once you receive your score report, understanding what your score means is vital.

- 65-100: Passing score, indicating sufficient understanding of global history concepts.
- 85-100: Excellent performance, demonstrating advanced understanding and analytical skills.
- Below 65: Failing score, but students can retake the exam to improve their results.

Most score reports also include a scaled score, a percentile ranking, and a breakdown of performance in different sections.

global regents scoring guide: Discipline Problems Tadashi Dozono, 2024-05-07 Angel, a Black tenth-grader at a New York City public school, self-identifies as a nerd and likes to learn. But she’s troubled that her history classes leave out events like the genocide and dispossession of Indigenous people in the Americas, presenting a sugar-coated image of the United States that is at odds with her everyday experience. “The history I learned in school is simpler,” she says. “The world I live in is a lot more complex.” Angel, like every student interviewed in Discipline Problems, has been identified by teachers as a “troublemaker,” a student whose behavior disrupts classroom norms and interferes with instruction. But her critiques of the curriculum she’s taught speak to her curiosity and insight, crucial foundations for understanding history. Like many students who have been marginalized by systemic racism in American schools, she exposes the shortcomings of her classrooms’ academic environments by challenging both the content and the methods of her education. All too often, these challenges are framed as “troublemaking,” and the students are disciplined for “acting out” instead of being rewarded for their intellectual engagement. Tadashi Dozono, a professor of education and former high school social studies teacher, takes seriously the often-overlooked critiques that students of color who get labeled as troublemakers direct toward their high school history curriculum. He reinterprets “troublemaking,” usually cast as a behavioral deficit, as an intellectual asset and form of reasoning that challenges the “disciplining reason” of classrooms where whiteness is valued over the histories and knowledge of people of color. Dozono shows how what are traditionally framed as discipline problems can be seen through a different lens as responses to educational practices that marginalize non-white students. Discipline Problems reveals how students of color seek out alternate avenues for understanding their world and imagines a pedagogy that champions the curiosity, intellect, and knowledge of marginalized learners.

global regents scoring guide: Futureproofing Engineering Education for Global Responsibility Michael E. Auer, Tiia Rüttermann, 2025-03-20 This book contains papers in the fields of: Collaborative learning. Digital transition in education. AI and learning analytics in engineering education. Diversity in engineering education. The authors are currently witnessing a significant transformation in the development of education on all levels and especially in post-secondary and higher education. To face these challenges, higher education must find innovative and effective ways to respond in a proper way. Changes have been made in the way we teach and learn, including the massive use of new means of communication, such as videoconferencing and other technological tools. Moreover, the current explosion of artificial intelligence tools is challenging teaching practices maintained for centuries. Scientifically based statements as well as excellent best practice examples are necessary for effective teaching and learning engineering. The 27th International Conference on Interactive Collaborative Learning (ICL2024) and 53rd Conference of International Society for Engineering Pedagogy (IGIP), which took place in Tallinn, Estonia, between 24 and 27 September 2024, was the perfect place where current trends in higher education were presented and discussed. IGIP conferences have been held since 1972 on research results and best practices in teaching and learning from the point of view of engineering pedagogy science. ICL conferences have been held since 1998 being devoted to new approaches in learning with a focus on collaborative learning in Higher Education. Nowadays, the ICL conferences are a forum of the exchange of relevant trends and research results as well as the presentation of practical experiences in learning and Engineering Pedagogy. In this way, the authors try to bridge the gap between 'pure' scientific research and the everyday work of educators. Interested readership includes policymakers, academics, educators, researchers in pedagogy and learning theory, schoolteachers, learning industry, further and continuing education lecturers, etc.
