It examines how decisions are made, the factors that influence those decisions, and the implications for resource allocation and market structures. The course covers a variety of key concepts, including:

Key Concepts Covered in AP Microeconomics

1. Scarcity and Choice: Understanding that resources are limited and how choices are made in the face of scarcity.
2. Supply and Demand: Learning about market equilibrium, shifts in supply and demand, and price elasticity.
3. Market Structures: Exploring different types of market organization, including perfect competition, monopolistic competition, oligopoly, and monopoly.
4. Consumer Behavior: Analyzing how consumers make purchasing decisions based on preferences and budget constraints.
5. Production and Costs: Understanding production functions, short-run and long-run costs, and economies of scale.
